His mother married a man from Indonesia. The family moved there and Obama's sister Maya was born. Obama went to school but his mother wanted him to go back to Honolulu to finish.

When Barack was ten, he went back to Hawaii to live with his grandparents. Barack went to fifth grade at the Punahou Academy in Hawaii where he was one of three black students at the school. He graduated with very good grades. Barack says that this is the place he first understood what it meant to be born African American. Sometimes his mother got him up at 4:30 in the morning to study and work on homework. She wanted him to do well in school so he could go to a good college. He played basketball with his friends and with his school team during.

When Obama was in college his father died. Barack had spent only one month with his father during a short visit in Honolulu after his parent's divorce. Obama wanted to know more about his Kenyan father and other family. He visited Kenya to meet them. On this trip he learned more about his father and grandfather. He wrote a book about his trip. The book was "Dreams of My Father".

Obama graduated from college in 1983 and worked for two years. He then moved to Chicago in 1985 and worked to help poor people.

After law school, Obama returned to Chicago to work as a civil rights lawyer. He volunteered to help Bill Clinton's presidential campaign. Obama met his wife Michelle in 1988. They were married on October 3, 1992. They have two daughters, Malia and Sasha Obama was elected to the Illinois State Senate. He worked on giving poor people health care services and tax breaks.

Obama did not agree with President George W. Bush's idea to go to war with Iraq. He spoke against this war during a rally in Chicago.

At the Democratic National Convention he went on TV and gave the opening speech for the presidential campaign of John Kerry. People all over the country heard this speech and liked it.

Obama was elected to the United States Senate and worked hard for the poor people of the United States. His goals were to help poor people have better health care, help Hurricane Katrina victims, and help people use green energy. He wrote a second book during this time. The Audacity of Hope: Thoughts on Reclaiming the American Dream.

In February 2007, Obama announced his candidacy for the 2008 Democratic presidential nomination. He fought in a tough battle against Hillary Rodham Clinton. He became the nominee on June 3, 2008. On November 4th, 2008, Barack Obama defeated Republican presidential nominee John McCain for the position of U.S. President. He is now the 44th president of the United States and the first African-American to hold this office.

Obama won the Nobel Peace Prize in October 2009. He won for his extraordinary efforts to strengthen international diplomacy and cooperation between peoples.
